In December 1939, Ashraf Abbasov was drafted into the ranks of the Soviet army and served in Belarus. There, he led the choir at the club of the military unit. However, in the book "History of Azerbaijani Music" of 2018 it is indicated that he was an ordinary musician of the military brass band of the 345th infantry regiment. With the beginning of the Great Patriotic War (1941-1945), Ashraf Abbasov volunteered for the front and participated in the battles near the town of Yelnya, not far from the village of Novopasskoye (Smolensk region, Russia). In those days he was seriously wounded in the arm and was subsequently demobilized from the army.

In 1945, Ashraf Abbasov created his first symphonic poem "Shusha". He is also the author of the following works: poems "The day will come" (1952), "Dramatic poem"; (1953\1962) "Concertino" for symphony orchestra (1942-1951). Russian composer Dmitri Shostakovich commented on the latest work: "Concertino by Ashraf Abbasov for orchestra with solo instruments is a fresh, bright, talented work. The author, obviously out of modesty, did not call it a concert. Excellent orchestration, richness of content, economical use of colors ensures that this work is firmly anchored in our repertoire."
